FUTURE OF WORK@IOWA EVALUATION UPDATE

Cheryl Reardon reviewed data elements being used to evaluate the Future of Work@Iowa pilot.

- Thank you to everyone working with HR on the pilot. The information has been helpful to shape recommendations.
- HR is using the following to evaluate the pilot program:
  - Work arrangements data obtained from the self-service application
  - Answers from an added exit interview question to gauge the importance of flexibility
  - Specific modality questions added to existing customer surveys
  - Space impact data
  - An optional (at the org level) 10 question survey going out in late October for participating units
- The preliminary report is expected by mid-November and final evaluation report March 2022. There is a gap between the end of the pilot and the due date for the final report. This creates unknowns and HR will share updates as they become available.
- Individual departments looking to evaluate their pilot should work directly with their senior HR rep or reach out to Cheryl directly.
- A UIISC rep raised a concern about the equitable availability of technology for hybrid and remote-work staff. There have been laptop supply chain issues. The availability of technology is not currently being evaluated but could potentially be included in the list of recommendations in the report.

LABOR MARKET CHALLENGES, STAFF RETENTION, AND RECRUITMENT STRATEGIES

Keith Becker and Trevor Glanz reviewed UI strategies in response to labor market challenges.

- Labor market challenges currently exist across all industries for various reasons, such as employees reevaluating their purpose, an abundance of job opportunities, and talent pools shrinking.
- Proactively understanding our workforce will help UI attract and retain employees. Ways to do this include conducting stay interviews and forecasting potential retirements.
- Trevor Glanz reviewed how salaries are analyzed internally, externally, and typical salary setting factors for current staff. UI is competing more on a national and international level with the increase of virtual employment opportunities.
- A good compensation strategy over the next 12-18 months includes prioritizing positions, utilizing the salary adjustment review process, and considering special compensation if base increases are not feasible (spot awards and exceptional performance awards). Currently, the Board of Regents has expanded the spot award process to allow up to 8 spot awards, worth up to a net amount of $300 each.
- Recruitment tips are included in the slide deck.
- The goal is to offer a competitive employment package across the big picture, e.g., benefits, cost of living, and ample training opportunities at UI.

Questions

UIISC representatives prompted the following discussions:

1. Policies regarding the availability of and amount for transition and relocation expenses are decentralized, with oversight from University HR.
2. Keith and Trevor are aware UI lags behind other Big Ten peer institutions regarding dependent tuition assistance. This is a continuing conversation topic with leadership and would require a Board of Regents action.
3. Employee safety is important to leadership. UI is a state institution governed by the Board of Regents and must abide by their policies. HR is awaiting guidance on President Biden’s executive order.
4. Median low and median high salaries are provided as reference points for Pay Structures. This creates more transparency for the distribution of salaries within a certain level. Encourage additional emphasis on high performers who are below their median zone during salary increase periods.
5. UI is focusing on being creative and exploring new ways to recruit staff as we work towards becoming a destination university for students and the workforce.
6. Merit steps essentially went away in 2017 but on July 1, 2021 the merit increase was set at 1% by the BOR. There is concern from UIISC reps regarding large gaps in wages for merit staff.
7. UIISC President Kevin Zihlman encouraged Trevor and Keith to partner with UIISC on initiatives and when seeking staff feedback.

EDDIES TEDDIES INC.

UIISC continued its commitment to highlighting great work done by staff outside their roles at UI by welcoming dynamic presenter Eddie Etsey (Chief Technology Officer, UI Athletics) to share multiple projects he champions outside of his UI position.

- Eddie is the host of the podcast On the Edge with Eddie: Detangling our Black Identities. The podcast is designed to bridge “Black Africans, Black Americans, and every melanin in-between”.
- Eddies Teddies, Inc grew from Eddie’s desire to create experiences where kids can feel inspired. The non-profit started with 50 teddy bears Eddie delivered to a children’s hospital in Ghana. Having a companion helps kids heal faster and the initial reaction was incredible for the kids and for Eddie.
- Eddies Teddies, Inc.’s mission is to provide resources to underprivileged populations and to institutions that cater to these populations. Eddie takes time to understand the culture and community of an area to make sure assistance is efficient and effective. The non-profit seeks to provide resources, create a global community/classroom, and empower dreams. Past projects include setting up a library, distributing teddy bears, and providing menstrual health education.
- A book drive will occur in December and other drives for basic needs and medical supplies will occur at other times of the year. Information will be shared with UIISC as it is available.
- Eddie encouraged UIISC members to:
